

Principal's Message

Sr. Dr. Maggie Jose

“ When you pass through the waters I will be with you; and through rivers they shall not overwhelm you ” (Isaiah 43:2a).

The Year 2018-19 stands unique from the yester years in the history of Kerala for its celebration of unity in its fight against natural disaster, heavy rains and floods. People united in incredible manner to organize rescue and relief work, led by all kinds of people's organization. The collective effort to survive and rebuild strengthened the feeling of unity and brotherhood .We witnessed an overarching sense of collective solidarity and desire to support which was cutting across religious, political or class lines. Yes, it was truly humanity at its best.

Our College served as Collection Centre during these days to help distribution of necessities to the inhabitants of various relief camps and to the ones who lost their effort of life'slabour because of flood. Let me congratulate the ones who had served as volunteers in this service .Let me appreciate teachers and students who had imbibed positive spirit and had internalized a great lesson from this disaster which motivated them to design various programmes which propagated the message of oneness. Several orientation programmes to enlighten people about calamities and strategies to overcome were conducted. Let me thank the faculty and students of this college for putting in effort to bring the best out of everyone and to empower ourselves to serve the society for a better tomorrow.

MCAR

Marian Centre for Advanced Research

In a globalised world, the role of research in an academic institution is significant for its sustainability and development. So we have come out with MCAR, but would like to define it as Marians Creativity and Research (MCAR) since this unit is consistently focusing on to conduct independent research and analysis to educate, inform and advise students. They have been keen on working on the social issues related to 'flood after impact' and have been successful in developing a biofertilizer consortium to help the farmers.
